During the summer camp where I was working, I’ve introduced my group to the ideas we have discussed in the „Ecologize your mind” project. We were sleeping in tents in the woods so our carbon footprint wasn’t enormous :)

On the first day a whole group (thirteen girls, age from eight to eleven) did infographics about rules we should obey in order to not harm nature — especially during our stay. Every group had a different rule and through images the rest of the team had to guess what is it about.

We did „natural treasure hunting" — girls got envelopes with colors on them and had to find stuff with the same color: it could be anything, sky was the limit!
